Pleasant for Mamma.

Little Johnnie (looking curiously at the visitor)—Where did the chicken bite you, Mr. Billus? I don't see any of the marks.

Visitor—Why, Johnny, I haven't been bitten by any chicken.

Johnny—Mamma, didn't you tell pap Mr. Billus was dreadfully henpecked? Why, mamma, how funny you look! Your face is all red.—Texas Siftings.

Handled with Care.

Customer (who has just purchased a wonderfully cheap set of furniture)—Do you always pack furniture carefully before delivering it?

New Boy—This kind we do, 'cause the jarring would shake it to pieces.—N. Y. Weekly.

Worse Than Critical.

"They tell me that the editor is not very well," said the poet's friend.

"He is feeling quite badly," was the reply. "I called on him this morning."

"Is his condition critical?"

"Worse than that; it's abusive."—Washington Star.

A Forlorn Hope.

By Telegraph to THE TIMES.

QUEBEC, July 9.—The second section of a pilgrimage train ran into the first on the Grand Trunk railway at Craig's Road station, where the first had stopped for water. The cars were crushed and telescoped. The number killed is said to be twenty-five, including three priests. The number injured is thirty-four. The engineer and fireman of the second section were killed outright.

DESPERATE STRIKERS

Resort to Lawlessness and Make Dire Treats—Fire Discovered By the Watchman.

By Telegraph to THE TIMES.

NORTH FORK, W. Va., July 9.—An attempt was made by strikers to burn the time and toolhouse of the Ashland colliery today. The watchman saw them in time to stop the blaze. Notices were found under the Arlington Co's. office door saying that this burning was but a forerunner of what they would do if their demands were not met.

ANARCHISTIC STRIKERS ARRESTED.

One Advised Blowing up Engines and the Other Tried to Hang a Man.

His Wife's Position.

"Now," said the bridegroom to the bride when they returned from the honeymoon trip, "let us have a clear understanding before we settle down to married life. Are you the president or vice president of this society?"

"I want to be neither president nor vice president," she answered. "I will be content with a subordinate position."

"What is that?"

"Comptroller of the treasury."—Texas Siftings.

Flint Glass Workers Meet.

TOLEDO, O., July 9.—The flint glass workers of America began its first annual convention here Monday morning and opened with an address of welcome by the mayor. There are 180 delegates from 125 unions in the United States and Canada. They will be here about ten days. Chief among the matters to come up is the possible settlement of the difficulty with the United States Glass Trust. A wage scale will also engage attention.

Paroled Convict Implicates Another Man.

ZANESVILLE, O., July 9.—Wm. Jewett has been arrested at Taylorsville, charged with being implicated in the burglary of Wm. Williamson's residence at Taylorsville, February 12, 1893, at which time $4,000 in notes and $600 in money were secured. Wesley Eppley was convicted of the offense and sentenced to the penitentiary for seven years, but was paroled after serving two years. He has made a confession implicating Jewett.

To Set Aside a Sale of a Railroad.

TOLEDO, O., July 9.—In the United States court Monday morning, Williamson and Cushing, solicitors Toledo, Ann Arbor and North Michigan railway, filed a motion for the stockholders to set aside the recent sale of the road, and their principal contention is that that portion of the company's property in Ohio was not sold separately from the other property.

Ohio Crop Report.

COLUMBUS, O., July 9.—The Ohio crop report issued Monday showing the condition of crops in this state on July 1, places the corn prospect at 85 per cent. of a full average crop and the wheat prospect at only 58 per cent. The hay crop is almost a failure, and the potato crop will also fail if rain does not come in the next two weeks.

Trotting Races at Columbus.

COLUMBUS, O., July 9.—Excellent weather, barring a brisk wind, favored the Columbus driving park trotting races at the opening Monday. The track was in excellent condition, but the attendance was light. O. S. Lehman officiated as starter. The feature of the exhibition was the free-for-all pace, in which there were eight starters. In this race Rubenstein, the speedy son of Baron Wilkes, won three straight heats, going the fastest three miles in succession that have been trotted or paced anywhere this season.

Hurt By Falling Ice.

MT. VERNON, O., July 9.—Harry Bowden's ice wagon upset about noon Monday, and several immense chunks of ice fell on Willie Parnell, aged 8, bruising him and cutting him in a bad shape. The injuries are very serious.

A Timely Rain.

CAMBRIDGE, O., July 9.—A very hard shower struck here Monday morning, coming just in time, as the crops were in a very bad condition, and there is much rejoicing among the farmers.

The Challenge Cup Race at Henley on Thames—120,000 People Including 5,000 Americans In Attendance—Famous Pacer Dallas Dead—Other Telegraph Tips.

By Telegraph to THE TIMES.

HENLEY ON THAMES, July 9.—The Cornell crew won the grand challenge cup. There were seven entries and it is estimated that a hundred and twenty thousand persons were present.

Other competitors were: Etou college, Leander club, London Rowing club, New College Oxford, Thames Rowing club, Trinity Hall, Cambridge. The course was a mile, 550 yards. Fully 5,000 Americans were present. Cornell and Leander started promptly at three. Cornell won easily, Leander not finishing the race. It was afterward stated that Leander refused to start when the word was given and Cornell rowed over the course in 8 minutes and 11 seconds.

It is reported that the Leander crew will contest against the decision of the umpire, allowing Connell to beat when the former was not ready to start, and as the Leanders did not start, Connell rowing alone. The latter refuse congratulations because there was no race.

The London rowing club beat the Argonaus club of Toronto for the Stewards cup for fours. Time, eight minutes and one second.

BEAT THE DRUM.

The Salvation Army Drummer Discharged and Case Dismissed.

The Prosecution Fails to Make a Case and It Never Goes to the Jury—Large Crowd Attracted to Mayor's Court by the Trial This Morning—A Farce.

The base drum has come to stay. The Salvation Army will continue to use it to summon the soldiers to worship and to call sinners into the fold. The little band of workers will parade up and down the city to the measured beats of the big drum undismayed by the sight of the blue coated, brass buttoned guardian of the peace. Dyspeptic sinners who writhe in agony at the beseeching tones of the invitation to partake of the refreshing waters of the Fountain of Life, will like Mephisto either fall prostrate and cover their ears from the sound or hie themselves to some secluded spot away from such unwelcome disturbances. The drum will continue to reign as master of the ceremonies of the army.

Probably nothing of such insignificance and minor importance has been dignified by public interest to such an extent as has this recent trouble of the local branch of the Salvation Army. Everybody knows that Capt. Walter W. Robins was arrested and imprisoned for beating the drum on the streets in violation of orders from the mayor. The trial was set for yesterday afternoon at four o'clock. The mayor's court room was crowded. The entire afternoon was occupied in securing a jury, the panel being filled a half dozen times. Before adjourning the following were sworn in as jurors: Charles Kendall, M. R. Micklethwait, W. K. Thompson, W. B. Anderson, J. J. Rardin, Abe White, Dr. A. S. Weiler, James Artis, Henry Molster, E. F. Draper, Kinney Hall, E. E. Ewing.

When court opened at eight o'clock this morning the room was crowded by witnesses and curious spectators. Harry Ball, Esq., stated what the city expected to prove, i. e. that the beating of the drum was a nuisance, etc., etc., and R. A. Calvert, attorney for the defendant, stated that he expected to show that the defendant was lawfully worshiping, and that his arrest was an outrage and a travesty on the freedom provided by the constitution of the United States.

The trial which followed, or rather the portion of a trial was the merest farce. The state's witnesses were examined and it was evident before all the testimony was in that the objection to the noise of the drum was not as far reaching as the authorities had been led to believe. Most of the witnesses were unable to say positively that the drum had been in use the night in question and there were absolutely no strong objections to it. The witnesses examined were George Phillipi, Mr. Robb, John Neudorfer; Frank Marting, Mose Lehman, C. A. Winter, Ed Corriell, Sarah Crowe, Charles Herms, Frank Legler, John Jones, Fletcher Lowes, Charles Amann, J. J. Brushart, George Daum, James Adams Charles Rauch, J. P. Wahrheit, Carl Huber.

Some of them said that the beating of the drum was rather annoying at times, but the testimony was characterized by a lack of enthusiastic, sincere objection, or evidence of a yearning desire to "annihilate the whole shooting match." After the state's evidence was in Attorney Ball arose and said that he did not expect a conviction, did not think that the charges had been proved and was willing to drop the whole affair.

And that's how it all happened. Captain Robins was discharged and the case dropped.

A Member of the Stone Pile Gang Gave the Boss the Slip and Escaped This Morning.

Albert McGlone, who was working out a fine and costs on the city stone pile, escaped from that institution this morning. He was fined several weeks ago and upon promising to pay on a certain date was released. He failed to liquidate and last Friday was arrested and put to work on the stone pile to pound out the amount due. Yesterday he said that he was making arrangements to pay and did not work. His arrangements failed to materialize and he was sent to the stone pile with four other unfortunates this morning. When the boss' back was turned McGlone gave him the slip and was soon out of reach.

OFFICIAL CALL

And Apportionment for the Democratic State Convention.

DEMOCRATIC CENTRAL COMMITTEE
75½ SOUTH HIGH STREET,
COLUMBUS, OHIO, July 2, 1895.

At a meeting of the Democratic State Central Committee, held at Columbus, Ohio, on the 25th day of June, to fix the date and place of the State Convention, it was ordered:

That the date of said convention be fixed for Tuesday and Wednesday, August 20th and 21st, 1895.

That the place of meeting be Springfield, Ohio.

The district caucuses will be held on the afternoon of August 20th, at such an hour and at such places as may be fixed by the Committee of Arrangements.

The Convention will meet for temporary organization and to receive the reports of the district meetings at 10 a. m., August 21st.

A resolution was adopted by the committee, directing that in any county where either the Democratic County, Central or Executive Committee cannot agree upon any question affecting the interest of the party, the member of the Central Committee for the district in which such county is situated be authorized and empowered to cast the deciding vote in such committee.

The ratio of apportionment and representation in said convention was fixed at one delegate for every 500 votes, or any fraction of 250 or more votes, cast for President at the November election in the year 1892. Under such apportionment each county will be entitled to the following number of delegates:

CORPORAL TANNER in an interview in Cincinnati a few days ago, in speaking of Hoke Smith, says: "I tell you that the old soldier is indebted to Hoke Smith for the prevention of the suspension of pensions, and to nobody else. Hoke Smith had the courage to stand up for the old soldier, and I say that to him alone we are indebted for the non-suspension of pensions at the time the attack was made upon them. Hoke Smith, a Southerner himself, said to me he had nothing against the soldier, and wanted to see justice done him."

This coming from a man, who as commissioner of pensions under Harrison was discharged for his liberality to the old soldier, would ordinarily silence political demagogues who are continually charging Hoke Smith with punishing the old soldier because he hated him.

EASTERN, Western and Southern papers continue to give long lists of manufacturing establishments that have advanced their wages—not general statements, but specific lists that swell into the hundreds and affect tens of thousands of workmen. The TIMES could fill its pages with these lists. One of the most striking of these lists is that given recently by the New York Times, in which the names of twenty woolen factories were given, embracing 12,000 operatives, which have voluntarily increased the wages of their employes fifteen per cent. The price of wool has also advanced from 10½c under the McKinley tariff to 18c under the new tariff. These are facts, hard, unanswerable facts, that wipe out all sophistry and theory indulged in by high grade protectionists.

THE trial of Captain Robbins, of the Salvation Army, this morning developed the fact that few people, if any, are particularly annoyed by the army's peculiar methods of attracting the unrepentant sinner to their places of worship. Most men who have business go ahead attending to it, and forget there is any such thing as a session of the army going on. There is no doubt there are many people living near the hall who would prefer to have the drum and horn cease disturbing the serenity of their homes, but this is true, no doubt, of all persons living near churches where bells are rung for the various meetings of the church, and it is also true of mills where the whistles are blown every day for the convenience of calling employes to work. Many persons have to live beside a neighbor whose daughter is trying to ascend a scale of six octaves, accompanying it with music on the piano.

There are a great many things in this life to disturb a man with a sour stomach and arbitrary disposition. Our advice to such persons, especially those so afflicted on the Blade, is to get some celery compound—pepsin chewing gum and another jug of microbe killer, and go off somewhere, where their meditations will not be disturbed by the Salvation army drum which will no longer remind them of the regions toward which they are headed, and take a rest. And to the officials of the city it would be well for them to look up some of the dives where young men and young women of the city are led down to the depths from which this band of workers are striving to lift them. That they are doing some good in the city is evident not so much by their numbers, as by the fact that persons have been reclaimed by them who find their way into the churches of the city.

We are not in love with the methods of the Salvation Army, yet we are willing to see them exercise a right that we claim for ourselves and others, if we desired to call an assemblage of people for a legitimate purpose. Some of our German friends didn't like the quality of the music. With them we can't take issue, but aside from that, the evidence didn't show that any one is particularly annoyed in their business transactions. The Blade seems to be the principal sufferer, and if its editor and staff will follow our simple prescription they will have a speedy return to a normal nervous status.

THE contest between the Republicans of this state is without doubt the most shameless in the political history of the commonwealth. Never have the sand bag, the stiletto and the lie played so prominent or important a part in the politics of Pennsylvania. Whether or not this method of war is to triumph in the end cannot yet be determined, but whatever may be the issue our citizens will have been regaled with a struggle that has been notable for nothing so much as for the ingenious arts of the highway robber, the midnight thief and the Bowery "thug."—Philadelphia Record.

Simply a repetition of the late Republican contest in this state, with a few added side lights. Had the lights been turned on in this state as they are being turned on in the Quaker state the apparent contrast would disappear. Boss Cox is less intelligent and more corrupt than ever Quay was. Cox rose from a saloon keeper and ward tough to the practical control of the Republican party in the state today. He is the boon companion of Foraker, and with his chief came near being indicted for bribery by the McKinley faction at Columbus last spring for bribery in the late corrupt legislature.

A TROLLEY CAR,

Becoming Unmanageable at East Liverpool, O., Wrecked.

The Motorman Instantly Killed and Eighteen Passengers Injured.

The Car Jumps the Track on a Sharp Curve and Goes Over a Twenty-Foot Embankment Into a Creek—Several Persons Thrown Into the Water.

EAST LIVERPOOL, O., July 9.—At 3 o'clock Monday afternoon a trolley car with twenty-six passengers on board, became unmanageable and slid down the Franklin avenue hill, killing one man and injuring eighteen other people. The car was manned by James Hamilton, the new motorman, this being his first day on duty. The tracks were slippery after the rain and the car got out of his control. At the foot of the hill it jumped the track on a sharp curve and went over a twenty-foot embankment into a creek.

The momentum was so great that one-half the car was almost buried in the ground. Hamilton, the motorman, was instantly killed, his head being crushed to a jelly. The car broke in two as it struck and several passengers fell through the floor and were thrown into the creek. The injured:

Frank Green, chest crushed, probably die. Mrs. Frank Anderson, of Rochester, Pa., arm and rib broken. Mrs. Samuel Manor, serious internal injuries. Mrs. Charles Richardson, Wellsville, badly cut about head and breast. Charles Sence, Salineville, one rib broken. Moody Coburn, of this city, almost completely scalped and his leg and two ribs broken. He almost drowned before being rescued. Charles Ashbaugh, Bridgeport, O., several scalp wounds. Miss Millie Nicely, Wadsworth, O., cut in head and shoulder dislocated. Miss Maggie McDole, Toronto, O., one rib broken. Miss Frances Nessley, New Cumberland, W. Va., leg crushed and two ribs broken. C. F. Surley, Frank Anderson, Samuel Manor, John Manor, Mrs. Luella Anderson and Ella McDole, all cut about head and face. A peculiar feature about the accident was that seven of those injured were visitors in this city, who happened to be on the car.

Buckner in Lexington.

LEXINGTON, Ky., July 9.—Gen. Simon Bolivar Buckner and wife arrived here Monday night to attend the ceremonies of the unveiling of the Hanson monuments here Tuesday. Gen. Buckner is well pleased with the outlook for the party in the coming election. He is a candidate, he says, for the United States senate and thinks his chances good. He prefers the people to name their choice for senator and does not approve of the method of electing men to the legislature pledged to support a certain candidate when that candidate is taking a hand in the race to elect his friend, although the man is not the choice of the people. The general says he abandoned his active canvass to assist the party in making a platform of harmony.

The Leland Stanford Case.

WASHINGTON, July 9.—Attorney General Harmon in all probability will Tuesday order an appeal to be taken from the decision of Judge Ross in the case of the United States against the estate of the late Senator Leland Stanford, to recover $15,000,000. The suit, it will be remembered, was instituted in the United States court for the Southern district of California, to establish the liability of the stockholders of the Central and Southern Pacific Railroad Co. under the laws of the states for the dues of the corporations to the United States.

THE POPE'S DECREE.

A Circular Letter in Regard to Fast Days.

BOSTON, July 9.—In an investigation of the published reports from New York that the pope had promulgated a decree abolishing all days of abstinence in the year except Friday, even during Lent, the decree being made applicable only to poor persons and their families, it was learned that the following circular relative to the subject had been sent to all pastors of the Boston diocese:

Archbishop Rice, Union Park street, Boston: "Reverend Dear Sir: In answer to a petition from the most reverend archbishops, the holy see, by an indult given March 15, for ten years, has granted to the bishops of the United States the faculty of dispensing from the law of abstinence on certain days in favor of working people.

"By virtue of this indult and of the lenten dispensation the use of flesh meat is permitted on all days of the years except Friday, Ash Wednesday, Wednesday and Saturday in holy week and the vigilo Christmas.

On fast days covered by that indult persons who are bound to fast may use meat only once, but those exempt from the obligation of fasting by reason of age, health, etc., are not thus limited. The use of meat and fish at the same meal is not allowed.

The dispensation is to be considered as granted, not only to the individual working men or women, but to their entire households.

Pastors and confessors are counseled to use discretion in urging or relaxing the fulfillment of the law, carefully distinguishing between the grave reasons which in themselves exempt from the obligations and the lesser reasons which are sufficient to justify a dispensation. In the usual announcements made from the pulpit concerning the laws of fasting and abstinence special mention is to be made of this indult and the faithful should be advised to perform some other work of penance or self-denial, as for example, abstinence from all kinds of intoxicating drinks."

Fell Eight Floors.

CHICAGO, July 9.—The elevator in the Warren Springer building, 197 South Canal street, dropped from the eighth floor to the basement Monday morning. Samuel Ford and Joseph Lavoye, who were in the elevator, received internal injuries and will probably die.

NEIL HYSELL

Got the Nomination for Senator on the Second Ballot.

COLUMBUS, O., July 9.—The democrats of the Franklin-Pickaway senatorial district held their nominating convention. The district has two senators this time. Thaddeus E. Cromly, of Pickaway county, was nominated by acclamation. Then there was a contest between J. C. L. Pugh and ex-Speaker N. R. Hysell, of this city, for the other nomination. It was expected that Hysell would win in a walk, but Pugh developed unexpected strength. It was decided that the nominee must receive a majority of all the votes in the convention and a number of the delegates were not present. The first ballot resulted: Hysell, 82½; Pugh, 74½. On the second ballot Hysell got 91 votes, one more than necessary to nominate.

Two Killed and Three Fatally Hurt.

ST. LOUIS, July 9.—By the caving in of a ditch which workmen were digging for water pipe at One Hundred and Thirtieth and Branch street Monday morning, two men were killed and three fatally injured.

Jealousy's Victim.

MOBILE, Ala., July 9.—At Yellow Pine, Ala., Alfred Jones, in a jealous rage about a woman, killed Jim Henderson. The murderer escaped.

Marsh's Crushed Fruit.

J. I. Marsh's crushed fruit leads them all. It is a delicious drink, and is made from the natural fruit. No extracts are used. It will comply with the Ohio state law, and can be had at your grocers in this city.

We have been unable to ship up to the present time, owing to the large demand in the city, but now we propose to fill orders for picnics, and those who want the leading goods can get them by calling at the corner of Market and Front streets. I can furnish you with mineral waters, pints or quarts, just as you wish. Will pay special attention to picnics, and will take back goods that are not sold, though if it is a nice day you will not hardly order enough to supply the demand.

I have had nine years experience in this city and six years in Pennsylvania in the business, and you will find if you buy goods of me you will always find a sale for them. I make them so good that if you try one drink of pure pine apple you will want several more. And if you try the strawberry that was grown in Scioto county and the juice taken from them in Portsmouth, you will say "I never thought strawberry was so good before." The raspberry, fresh picked, made into sweet juice, put into bottles and sold by the dealers, is equally as fine. Apricot is an extra fine drink. It is a new drink, and is a favorite drink among the ladies, as well as among the gentlemen and children.

If you are going to have a picnic take some of the fruit along, and a hundred pounds of ice to keep it cold, and enjoy the day.

BEFORE THE PERFORMANCE.

"The man that I admire—he is quite impossible!" She laughed, "he must be infinitely clever, infinitely unselfish, infinitely energetic, infinitely capable, cool, reliant, brave—and a gentleman!"

The words rang in his memory. They had been spoken at a crowded reception, in a flower scented drawing room, amid the terrible buzz of a hundred high-pitched voices. They had been spoken by a glorious young woman, her chin up, her eyes flashing, her face radiant, the whole intensity of her nature in each cadenced word. They had been spoken at the end of a short, half-flippant conversation—and, indeed, had suddenly ended it—for the girl had burst away, as it were, from the narrowness of flippancy, and given him a sudden flash of her soul. It was quite impossible to do more than look his admiration at her radiant face. Her eyes dropped from his ardent gaze. Another man came up with several well-dressed ladies. Harold Burnett quietly left the room and took his departure from the crowded function, then at its height.

He had met Eleanor Armitage only a few weeks before. In his capacity as dramatic critic on a great New York daily, he had bestowed a few words of discriminating praise on the young English actress who had taken the town by storm, in her fresh and beautiful interpretation of Camille. She had sent for him at her hotel and thanked him. He had called once or twice since. He had met her brother—a curious, flabby, pale Englishman. This afternoon he saw her at a fashionable reception, where her English beauty shone amid the flower garden of the pretty American girls.

He saw, and he realized that he saw—with the eyes of a lover. It amused him to perceive a thrill of delight when, in the crush at the door, he overheard a handsome, impulsive girl say to another, "Eleanor Armitage, the actress, is perfectly ideal—she is lovelier off the stage than on. * * * She is good!" And the anger he felt as he took his hat and stick from a servant, to overhear an elderly gentleman say to another, "Oh, she's English and she's pretty and wears good clothes—and so New York has gone crazy over her, of course. It's a way New York has!"

He strode off, down the avenue to his club and dined alone, with a mild pint of warm Burgundy—so that he should not be disturbed in his silent contemplation of her—the girl who seemed, but, ah, so high, so pure, so cold, so above the "depravity of love!" The one woman who filled his dreams, night and day; the magnet of his thoughts—he loved her! Ah, that he could show it worthily, earn her gratitude still further as he had begun to do by praise in the face of the critics. To praise her now was to join in the ruck—no credit in her blue eyes! no, nor in his own grey ones! Ah, that he could show himself a man, and perform some deed of heroic effort for her!

"A perfect woman—nobly planned,"

After dinner he avoided his friends, and strolled out into the starry night before the performance, to be alone with his cigar—and thoughts of her. And then it was that the phantasm of her cool, smooth, fat, yet dissipated looking brother seemed to make himself particularly obnoxious. At every call he had made on her after that first visit, the brother had obtruded his fat face between them. Miss Armitage had betrayed a slight feeling of loathing for this same "brother," he thought—he had detected a look of pain in her face as he entered. Ah, this brother, this brother!—how could such a sot have had the same parentage as his goddess? Then he remembered Cain and Abel, and laughed, threw away his cigar, and drew near the well-lighted theater where his goddess was playing.

AT THE PERFORMANCE.

Shakespeare says that "Life's a poor player that struts and frets his hour upon the stage!" "All the world's a stage," he adds, "and men and women are but players," etc. These glittering generalities are only partly true. The life play, if a play, is Chinese, not modern. It is long drawn out—vague, purposeless, unwieldy. It has no beginning, no middle, no end, no art. It has incidents, escapades, formless bits of incident, sometimes it has plots—but plots and villains are growing uncommon in our well ordered communities. "There may, too, be a play within a play," said Burnett, as he entered the lobby and nodded to one or two newspaper men he knew. "For example," he said aloud, turning to the manager, a sad little man with a nervous manner, who was standing near the box office.

"For example? Well?" answered the manager, impatiently. "Burnett—you are a good friend to us these days. You seem to find some new charm in Miss Armitage every day."

"As I was saying," said Burnett stiffly.

"To whom? I should say, Burnett, if I didn't know you to be an incorrigible woman hater—you were in love. Your wits are so often wool gathering lately."

Burnett straightened himself up quickly. "For example, Mr. Manager, there are several dozen plays in progress every night at your theater, while the fictitious one is going through its three or four acts. I saw last night while the curtain was up and the lights were down, that Mrs. Lightfoot and her escort (a handsome young chap), did not see Mr. Lightfoot grinning down at them with a decidedly satanic leer from the balcony. When the entr' acte arrived and the lights went up, they caught sight of his severely bald head. As he distinctly left home that day for Boston—we have the true incident of comedy, the note of which is always surprise—as Mr. Lightfoot, for some reason, hates his wife's handsome young cavalier, and has forbidden him the house. The first act was already over and was out of the theater; for the second act, Mr. Lightfoot came down and greeted them freezingly, and Madame went suddenly home with her husband. The third act occurred, you see, at the "palatial" home of the Lightfoots—a stormy scene, I believe, tears recriminations, reconciliation—finale!"

"Ugh," growled the manager. "It makes me tired to think of any more plays—one's enough!"

Burnett turned absently toward a row of Miss Eleanor Armitage's photographs in a gilded frame.

A blissful thing, indeed, to love an actress—and as one runs to read the postered features of one's beloved in every shop and bar room! To see one's sweetheart staring from every fence and street corner—and how infinitely galling to see her—the "inimitable she"—daubed with a moustache, by some infamous street gamin, or treated in some barbarous fashion by some local wit! A sensitive "star" will, at the time of an engagement, keep severely within doors (how many do so!) The star's lover will best remain in obscurity also, and avoid shocking his sensitive soul!

Harold Burnett, who had the run of the theaters, for he was the prince of critics, the maker or marrer of theatrical fame, nodded to the doorkeeper, and strolled listlessly in to a seat, given him by the usher, in front. He heard the orchestra play with a feverish sense of anticipation. He saw the curtain rise. He saw Miss Armitage enter with that loping, graceful step of hers, and say to Nannine, in a stilled house:

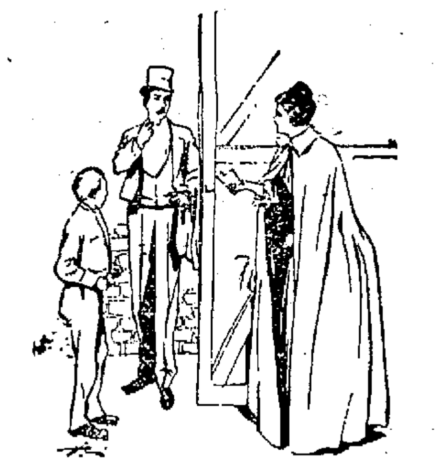

"Tell them to have supper ready! Olrmus and Saint Gaudens are coming. I met them at the opera. (To DeVarville) So, you are here, eh?"

Then he was in another dream world—and his heart gnawed itself with jealousy of the Paris-rural Armand, the ardent "French true lover." Gentle reader, pray pity the wretched lover of an actress! How much his nerves are called on to endure!

THE FIRST ENTR' ACTE.

As the curtain descended at the end of the first act he found himself behind the scenes.

Miss Eleanor Armitage hurried off the stage (an elegantly set drawing-room scene), where now, for the twentieth time, she had so admirably fainted in the dance with Armand (Mr. Wickersham). She was dressed in one of Worth's most charming creations—a white costume, du bal—her diamonds, though chiefly paste, gave none the less brilliancy to her appearance. As she stepped into the wings, her maid quickly adjusted about her shoulders a light cloak, which, of some dark material, enveloped her to her feet, and changed her from a laughing courtesan to a nun.

"NO! FROM DEARER THAN A BROTHER."

At the same moment Burnett made his bow, and a call boy delivered a telegram into her hand. It was marked "Rush." She opened it quickly.

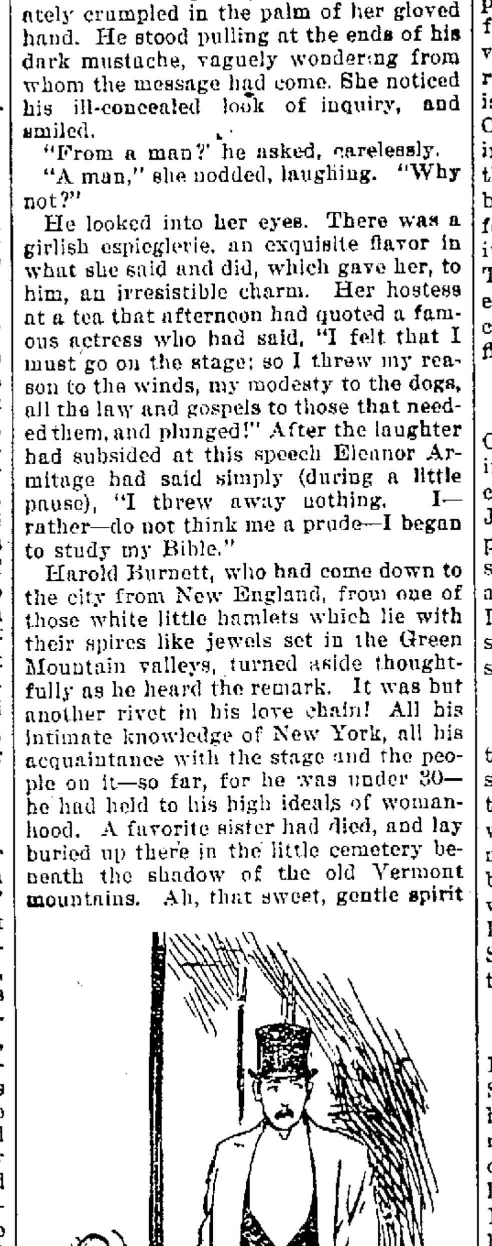

Barnett was rather a fine-looking fellow, tall, athletic, an ex-college oarsman. His face was intelligent and kindly—at the same time full of decision. He looked especially well in evening dress. As it was rather warm, he hung his light overcoat over his arm. He watched Miss Armitage's face light up with pleasure as she read the dispatch, which she immediately crumpled in the palm of her gloved hand. He stood pulling at the ends of his dark mustache, vaguely wondering from whom the message had come. She noticed his ill-concealed look of inquiry, and smiled.

"From a man?" he asked, carelessly.

"A man," she nodded, laughing. "Why not?"

He looked into her eyes. There was a girlish espieglerie, an exquisite flavor in what she said and did, which gave her, to him, an irresistible charm. Her hostess at a tea that afternoon had quoted a famous actress who had said, "I felt that I must go on the stage; so I threw my reason to the winds, my modesty to the dogs, all the law and gospels to those that needed them, and plunged!" After the laughter had subsided at this speech Eleanor Armitage had said simply (during a little pause), "I threw away nothing. I—rather—do not think me a prude—I began to study my Bible."

Harold Burnett, who had come down to the city from New England, from one of those white little hamlets which lie with their spires like jewels set in the Green Mountain valleys, turned aside thoughtfully as he heard the remark. It was but another rivet in his love chain! All his intimate knowledge of New York, all his acquaintance with the stage and the people on it—so far, for he was under 30—he had held to his high ideals of womanhood. A favorite sister had died, and lay buried up there in the little cemetery beneath the shadow of the old Vermont mountains. Ah, that sweet, gentle spirit of purity, loyalty and honor—it clung close to Harold Burnett still, in the crowded city wherever he went. It kept him from folly.

He was glad, as he believed that Eleanor Armitage was worthy of his sainted sister. The telegram to-night jarred on this sensitive impression a little. Her manner, too, puzzled him.

"From your brother?" he asked, as her maid brought her bonnet.

She glanced quickly at him.

"No, not from my brother—from one dearer than a brother."

His eyes betrayed eager inquiry, and there was a note of half-amused vexation, as she said hurriedly to the messenger. "Call me a cab instantly, at the stage door."

"I thought, your brother not being here——"

"He does not always come to the theater."

"When he does not come, will you not allow me to take his place?" He spoke very seriously.

She laughed merrily. "You are amusing, my friend. In you there is such a combination of innocence and—and—audacity. Au revoir; I am going to make a call. Can I do it in ten minutes?"

"You can do anything," he laughed, following her down to the stage entrance and putting her into her carriage, which had quickly driven up.

She gave the driver a hasty direction, and the coupe rattled quickly away down the stony street.

Burnett lit a cigar, and stood a moment looking after her carriage.

"What an odd caprice," he thought. "She received a dispatch from a man, and it evidently pleased her tremendously. (Puff from his cigar.) She jumps into her carriage, as if in answer to it, and is off, and, I declare, it's all rather queer." Then he laughingly quoted Chimmie Fadden's fine remark, "Everything goes wat Miss Fanny does—see? Wat she does an' says goes—see? Dat's right!" So, with him, he said to himself, "Everything Miss Armitage did must be right."

A moment later he found himself involuntarily walking at a nervously swift pace in the direction her carriage had taken.

A CLOUD-BURST.

The Town of Linn Creek, Mo., is Under Water.

ST. LOUIS, July 9.—A special from Richland, Mo., says that a cloudburst struck the town of Linn Creek, the county seat of Camden county, Saturday evening, and the entire town is under water. The citizens were compelled to leave their homes and dash for the hills. The town is located in a valley half a mile east of the Osage river, and the water from that stream is backed up into town, while Linn Creek has several smaller streams pouring upon the deserted village. It is thought no lives were lost, but this is by no means certain. A heavy rain fell all day Sunday in this vicinity, and it is feared more damage will occur. Telegraph and telephone poles are leveled by the dozens in places, and no communication has been had with the flooded district since Saturday night.

A Whole Family Poisoned.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., July 9.—News from Owensboro says: Tyrotoxicon poisoning again made its appearance in this city. Five members of the family of John G. Dilker were made ill by impure ice cream. None of them were seriously affected, however, and all are able to be up Monday except Mrs. Dilker. Only one week ago eight persons were made violently ill from the same cause.

Panic on a Steamboat.

VANCEBURG, Ky., July 9.—During the storm Monday afternoon, the steamer Reliance was nearly overturned near Quincy. The tiller rope was broken, and the boat could not be managed for some time. Passengers became greatly frightened. The boat was finally landed at the mouth of the Kinniconick and the trouble adjusted. She arrived here only an hour behind time.

New Cattle Disease.

FRANKFORT, Ky., June 9.—Gov. Brown received a telegram from I. M. Smith, of Oldham county, stating that his cattle are dying of some peculiar malady which baffles the knowledge of cattle-raisers and physicians of that locality. The governor has ordered Dr. McCormack, of the state board of health, to investigate the case.

Louisville Councilman Elopes.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., July 9.—Col. Fred Hoeter, one of the best known business men in Louisville, being a councilman in this city, and Miss Tillie Weber eloped to Jeffersonville and were married by Rev. C. R. Crowe, pastor of Morton chapel. Hoeter's first wife procured a divorce recently.

Fooled With Dynamite.

LOGANSPORT, Ind., July 9.—Murray Noble, a fourteen-year-old boy of Burrows, had both hands blown to pieces Monday by the explosion of a dynamite blasting cartridge, which he found in a neighbor's barn.

To Be Electrocuted in August.

NEW YORK, July 9.—Recorder Goff Monday morning sentenced Vincenzo Vini, the wife murderer, to be electrocuted some time during the week beginning Monday, August 12, at Sing Sing.

Trolley Car Accident at Buffalo.

BUFFALO, N. Y., July 9.—Nine men were badly injured by the derailing of a trolley car at North Buffalo Monday morning. A gang of about 75 Italians and Poles boarded the car to go to Tonawanda. The brakes were out of order, and in going down a steep grade the car became unmanageable.

Troops to Guard a Prisoner.

RICHMOND, Va., July 9.—Gov. O'Ferral has sent Company D to Berryville to prevent the lynching of Henry Robinson, a Negro, on trial for criminal assault upon a white woman. Notwithstanding the presence of the militia trouble is expected.

Prince of Wales Not Coming.

NEW YORK, July 9.—The prince of Wales has written to a correspondent that he has abandoned his intention of coming to America.

SECOND VISIT.

Two Storms Do Considerable Damage in Georgia.

Madison, Sparta and Milledgeville Suffer the Worst.

Houses Blown Down and Crops Ruined—Mr. Pennick's Dwelling Blown to Pieces Over His and His Wife's Heads—They Escape With Slight Injury.

ATLANTA, Ga., July 9.—News from the path of Monday's cyclone comes in slowly. Specials to the Constitution from Madison, Sparta and Milledgeville received Monday night, state: Another storm of great violence passed over that section doing much damage to crops and buildings.

In Morgan county, in addition to the damage reported Monday night, comes the news of the destruction of the home and buildings of S. W. Higginbotham.

At E. L. Bradstons, the wind swept away all his barns and outhouses, leaving his dwelling intact. His family took refuge in a storm pit.

At Mrs. D. E. Butler's plantation, several farmhouses were blown away and her crop badly damaged.

The worst feature of the storm seems to have been the destruction of Mr. Lally Pennick's house while he and his wife were in it. Parties who saw the wreck Monday say it was simply a miracle that saved them from death. The house is a mass of ruins. His corn crop is a complete wreck. He and his wife will recover from the injuries they received.

At Albert Collier's place, two of his children had their limbs broken by falling timber.

G. D. Parry's plantation lay in the storm's path and several of the farm houses and much of his crop are ruined.

People who saw the storm clouds say that it was an awful sight.

LAID OFF.

Constructor Fernald and Civil Engineer Asserson Detached From the New York Navy Yard.

WASHINGTON, July 9.—Secretary Herbert Monday determined to detach Constructor Fernald and Civil Engineer Asserson from the New York navy yard after carefully considering their explanations of the serious frauds practiced in their department relating to the employment of labor. The secretary will make public the papers in the case Tuesday.

Naval Constructor Francis T. Bowles, who has been at the Norfolk navy yard since 1886, and Civil Engineer A. G. Menocol, of Nicaragua canal fame, have been chosen to succeed Fernald and Asserson, who will be given no further duty, but will remain under reduced pay without quarters on waiting orders.

To Jail for Contempt.

CHICAGO, July 9.—Judge Payne Monday committed Mrs. Alonzo Cottier to jail for six months, there to remain till she discloses the whereabouts of her child Florence. An appeal was asked for by her counsel, and the court said that if he granted the appeal it would operate as a supercedeas. From the tone of his remarks it seems probable that he will grant the appeal, and in that case, upon giving bond, Mrs. Cottier would still be free and the responsibility in the case be shifted to the higher court.

Infernal Machine Through the Mails.

CENTRALIA, Wash., July 9.—Mrs. Mattie Chambers, a widow, has received an infernal machine containing dynamite through the mails. It is claimed that it was sent to her by Rev. B. F. Fuller, a rejected suitor. Fuller is now in Raleigh, N. C. The curiosity of the postmaster saved the woman's life. He saw sandpaper protruding from the end of the box and pried the lid off without ignighting the match. The postal authorities are investigating.

Sailors in Irons.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 9.—The bark Arago, Capt. Perry, came to port Sunday night with four sailors in irons. The men refused to do duty after the vessel left the Columbia river bound for Valparaiso. They were placed in irons for mutiny, and Capt. Perry headed for San Francisco. The four men were turned over to the police to be delivered to the U. S. marshal and subsequently tried for mutiny on the high seas.

More Spanish Troops for Cuba.

HAVANA, July 9.—During the present month reinforcements of 16,000 men will leave Spain for Cuba and during the month of October and the early part of November additional reinforcements to the number of 60,000 troops will be sent from Spain to Cuba. All the steamers of the different Spanish lines will be chartered by the government in order to send the troops here.

Two Workmen Killed.

CHICAGO, July 9.—Jacob Sellers and Andrew Austeretz met instant death Monday while at work on a scaffold in the rear of a building at Franklin and Madison streets. They were sixty-five feet above the ground when suddenly the rope that held up one end of the scaffold parted and both men were hurled to the ground. Their bodies were terribly mutilated.

Injured in a Street Car Wreck.

CHICAGO, July 9.—Five persons were seriously hurt Monday morning in the wrecking of on electric street car near the corner of Taylor and Paulina streets. Several of the other passengers received slight injuries and for a time great excitement prevailed.

German Editor Dead.

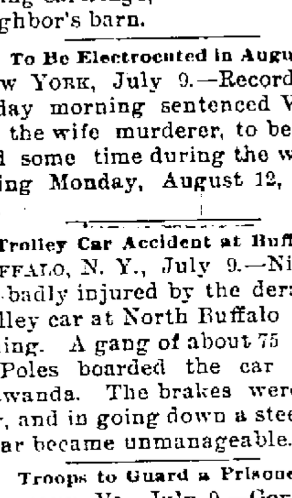

LANCASTER Pa., July 9.—Frederick W. Haas, for many years editor of the Folks Freund, of this city, and prominent in German musical circles throughout the state, died very suddenly Monday morning from heart disease, aged 62 years.

Ex-City Marshal Fred Schmitt Recalls a Little Experience

With the Trio of Famous Bank Thieves Who Recently Escaped from New York City Jail—They Visited Portsmouth Once and Wanted to Examine Bank Safes.

The recent escape of the trio of postoffice thieves from the Ludlow street jail in New York City recalls to the mind of Ex-Marshal Fred Schmitt a little experience he had with two of these famous crooks.

The particulars connected with their daring escape from the jail in broad day light are familiar to all who have been reading the daily papers of the last week. It was the most daring and successful attempt at jail delivery ever attempted in this country. The men walked out of prison at 8 o'clock in the morning, right before several guards who had been placed over them to watch their movements. They not only made good their escape but have been successful in keeping their whereabouts unknown ever since. The shrewdest detectives in the country have been unable to locate them. Postmaster General Wilson has offered a reward of $1,000 each for their capture. The men were arrested for robbing the Springfield, Ill., postoffice of stamps to the value of $25,000. They were confined in the Ludlow street jail New York city awaiting the extradition papers to transfer them to the Springfield jail.

Their escape has caused no end of comment in the East. It is generally thought that they bribed the guards and jail officials. It is known that they had offered the guards $5,000 each for a chance to gain their liberty. This is the first escape from the Ludlow jail for twenty years. The thieves who escaped were Joseph Killoran, Chas. Allen and Harry Russell. They belonged to the gang of bank burglars who under the leadership of Maximillian Shinburn, lately turned their attention to the postoffices in the country towns.

Killoran and Allen once visited this city four or five years ago and it was then that ex-Marshall Schmitt made their acquaintance. They came here for the evident purpose of robbing one of the banks but were driven out of town by the marshal. They visited several of the banks and representing themselves as newspaper reporters wanted to examine the locks on the bank safes. They produced papers, cards and everything, showing their connection with one of the leading Cincinnati dailies. They produced a letter from the editor of that paper commissioning them to make an examination of the safes and vaults in this city. They were faultlessly dressed and very polite in all their manners. A shade of suspicion was aroused by their actions and the police officials were consulted. Marshal Schmitt was soon convinced of their crookedness when he learned the modus operandi of their work. He went to Killoran and his pal, who were stopping at the Biggs, and warned them to leave town before morning or they would be arrested and locked up on suspicion. They tried to argue the question with the officer, but he would not listen to them, and the next morning when the marshal called at the hotel they were gone. They had left in the night very mysteriously, without stopping to settle up their hotel bill for two day's lodging. An attempt was made to trace them up, but all efforts to locate them proved useless.

Killoran began his career as a bank robber, but of late years developed into an expert postoffice thief.

As "Joe Howard" he robbed a bank at Waterford, N. Y., early in the seventies, and was sentenced to Sing Sing for five years. He escaped after serving part of his sentence, but was recaptured and afterward pardoned.

In the summer of 1876 he was arrested for the attempted robbery of a bank at Wilmington, Del. He was convicted and sentenced to remain in the pillory one hour, receive forty lashes and serve a sentence of ten years in prison.

It did not take Killoran long to dig his way out of prison. He was not recaptured for ten years, when the Pinkertons picked him up in Chicago as a suspicious person.

Six months later Killoran robbed a bank at Coldwater, Mich., and took $10,000 worth of diamonds. He reached Philadelphia with his booty, where he was caught and sent to prison for seven years. After serving his time he turned up at Easton, Pa., where he robbed a bank, was captured and served four years.

Charles Allen became a pickpocket in Chicago before the big fire. In 1869 he was sent to Joliet Prison for five years, and on his release came East. He served eighteen months in England and three years in Switzerland for sneak bank robberies. The police regard him as one of the most talented sneak thieves alive.

Mr. Schmitt is positive he would know Killoran if he should ever see him again. He had a peculiar shaped head with very heavy black eyebrows, in fact, he had the appearance of a typical villian with the grace and manners of a Beau Brummell.

Here is the official description of the thieves sent out by the New York police.

Joseph Killoran, 56 years old, 5 feet 10 inches high, slim built, about 170 pounds, black suit, russet shoes, black derby hat.

Charles Allen, 40, 5 feet 6 inches high, stout build, 190 pounds, black and gray hat, russet shoes.

Harry Russell, 33, 5 feet 9 inches, stout, 170 pounds, red complexion, dark suit, russet shoes, black derby.

Allen's picture is 1,587 in Rogues' Gallery.

The Summer Theatre.

The summer theatre at New Boston did not open up again last night as announced last week. Only a part of Manager O'Brien's new company of Cincinnati players arrived. It was concluded not to open up until the entire company put in their appearance. Manager O'Brien writes Mr. Gation that he is sick and it will be impossible for him to be here until next week. Music will be furnished every evening at the park this week.

MINGLING OF JOY AND SORROW.

The Wedding of Miss Isabelle Murray Hastened by the Critical Illness of Miss Mary J. Murray.

The many friends of Miss Mary J. Murray, of Grand Rapids, Mich., will be very sorry indeed to know that word has been received that she is failing rapidly. She has been in poor health for several months, much of which time has been spent in California.

Owing to the fact of her critical condition, her niece, Miss Isabelle Murray, whose wedding had been announced for July 16th, was quietly married last evening. The bride is a former Portsmouth girl, the attractive daughter of Jos. N. Murray. Miss Mary J. Murray has made her home with the family of her brother, Joseph, for a number of years.

The groom is Prof. Geo. T. Sellew, of Pennsylvania State College and is well and favorably known here. He is remembered as an instructor in the O. M. A. The Portsmouth friends of the newly married couple both rejoice and grieve with them in their mingling of joy and sorrow.

MURDER WILL OUT.

The Order of Mules Now Working on the Perry Murder Mystery in Kentucky.

A new lodge of the "Mules" was organized at McCoy, Ky., last night. This organization, which has for its special purpose the ferreting out of all crime, has been enjoying quite a boom since the murder of poor Ed. Perry at Bennett's Mills a few months ago. Perry was a member of the order, and the Mules have been taking special pains to trace down the mystery connected with his death. They claim to have some very damaging evidence, which will come up before the next session of court at Greenup. Just what the nature of the evidence is, and who it incriminates, is not known. There are several members of the "Mules" in Greenup county, and they have announced their intention of never letting up until the mystery of Perry's ending is solved. It is reported that several persons who were supposed to know more than they were willing to tell, have left the country for parts unknown.

MANAGER PRATT'S SUPERSTITION.

He Won't Have Anything to do with the Unlucky Number Thirteen.

Manager Frank Pratt, of the Portsmouth ball team, is superstitious, and his "whims" kept him in hot water all day yesterday. In the first place he brought thirteen players with him, but he would not let them all come on the same train. Part of them came in the morning, and part on the noon train. Rather than put thirteen names on the hotel register, he faked one name and made it fourteen. When he sat down to dinner he discovered that there were just thirteen people at the table, and he got up and left, saying that he would rather miss his dinner than sit at that table. And after all his hard plays for luck, they lost the game.—Chillicothe News.

ON THE CHICK LAWN

Crowds Enjoyed the Lawn Fete at New Boston Yesterday Afternoon and Evening.

The lawn fete at the Chick residence at New Boston last evening was a decided pleasure and success. It was given by the Ladies' Aid society of the Sixth Street M. E. church and the lawn and house were prettily decorared in honor of the event. Crowds were there all afternoon and evening the hours for the affair being from 3 to 10 p. m. The lawn was brilliantly lighted and the guests enjoyed the delightful home without restrain. Informal music was a continuous feature. Refreshments were served and the event thoroughly enjoyed by everyone.

The Ball Game.

The general admission will be twenty-five cents. Children under fifteen years of age fifteen cents. An additional ten cents will be charged for the grand stand seats. There will be no extra charge for carriages. Let everybody attend, another such a chance of witnessing scientific ball playing will not fall to the lot of many in a lifetime. Give the Reds a rousing reception, and take them back by your shouts to the day when their predecessors under Harry Wright in the bottoms during the days of the old Riversides played exciting old time ball.

K. of P. Notice.

Lincoln and the Highwayman.

The following is a current story of Abraham Lincoln which, if it is not true—as it probably is not—is at least entitled to a place in legendary literature: Lincoln was once riding along a lonely road when an ill-looking man who held a cocked revolver suddenly faced him.

"What do you want, my friend?" Lincoln asked.

"I am going to shoot you," answered the man.

"Well," said Lincoln, "I don't mind being killed, but I should like to know your reasons."

"I once vowed," said the man, "that if I ever met a man homelier than I am I would shoot him."

Lincoln looked critically at his assailant for a moment and then said:

"Well, if I am any homelier than you are, then for pity's sake shoot!"

Their Favorite Flower.

"Blossom red or blossom blue,
Which is better loved by you?"
Was the question Cupid to the maids addressed.
"Neither one," they made reply,
As they breathed a gentle sigh.
"For you know we love the orange blossom best!"

PRINTER'S INK is not effective in advertising—unless the facts; the cold hard facts, are behind it to back it up. Bear in mind when we state an article is worth so much, for such a price its so, and the goods and prices are here to prove it. P. i. look over the above list of referred-to-at-random-things and then put in a little of your spare time in "looking us over"—your judgment will do the rest without our pressing the button of your buying desire.

Doctors Are Cautious
About adopting a proprietary article, but even physicians say nothing is more nourishing for a sick person, nothing relieves "that tired feeling" more promptly than a pure liquid extract of malt. Try a bottle at
